

a sunday celebration

Today's issue of Sunday is our 300th, which we think is reason enough to celebrate

Sunday magazine was launched in 2004 to give the Sunday Star-Times a new voice, an edgier, female-skewed, aspirational tone. In our recent reader survey, you told us you'd most describe Sunday as being "reflective of New Zealanders and our lifestyles"; "thought-provoking"; "witty"; "entertaining"; and your "Sunday treat". We were pretty chuffed with that so, to celebrate your feedback and the fact that we're still trucking after 300 issues, we've come up with a pretty fantastic giveaway.

We commissioned a one-off piece of art from artist Flox (who was our August 9, 2009 cover story). Flox is one of the leading female stencil-based artists in New Zealand, as well as being a clothing designer, painter, mural contract worker, business operator and mum.

One lucky Sunday reader will win this exclusive art work. Spray-painted on wooden veneer, it features tui, kowhai and tropical flowers in Flox's trademark stencil style. It's very Kiwi and very Sunday. And it's a big 'un, measuring 1.1m by 1.7m, so it'll make an impact in any room.

And for two lucky runners-up we have a Mumm Champagne gift pack containing a bottle of Mumm and two Champagne flutes.

FL
OX

www.flox.co.nz

To enter, write your name, address and phone number on the back of an envelope and send to: Sunday magazine, Flox Giveaway, PO Box 6341, Wellesley Street, Auckland 1141, or email win@sundaymagazine.co.nz with your details by July ??